Greenheck India corporate office and manufacturing facility will be closed Saturday, 14 November – Monday, 16 November in celebration and observance of the Diwali Festival.

Greenheck India will be open for business on Tuesday, 17 November.

Diwali is called the Festival of Lights and is celebrated to honor the Lord, Rama-chandra, the seventh avatar (incarnation of the god Vishnu). Diwali, also known as Deepavali, is celebrated across India with great enthusiasm as it symbolizes the victory of good over evil. Diwali is celebrated 20 days after Lord Ram killed Ravana (Dussehra) and rescued Sita from captivity in Lanka. The celebration marks the return of Lord Ram to Ayodha after 14 years of exile.

Have a great holiday weekend!
